Are you a PhD-candidate in the field of educational sciences, and would you like to meet like-minded people from all over Europe?

We are pleased to invite you to the ICO International Spring School (ISS) 2023. The ICO ISS2023 is a mixture between a conference and a research retreat, and is an international educational event for PhD candidates from all over the world who do research in the domain of learning, instruction, and education.

The primary aim of the ICO Spring School is to learn. You can learn from the keynote speeches, learn from the various workshops organized by experts in their field, and learn by presenting and discussing issues with regard to your own PhD-project, in small groups with your peers. As a participant, you are also expected to review the presentations of your peers.

The second aim is to socialize and build your network in an international scientific community. The ICO ISS2023 is a valuable event for all PhD-candidates, independent of the stage of your research project.

We encourage you to attend the entire week, but you may choose to attend either the first half (Part A) or the second half of the week (Part B). Everyone is welcome to join the social event and dinner on Wednesday.

What to expect:

- Participation in advanced workshops related to methodology and themes within the educational sciences;
- Share your research in a paper or poster presentation or a round table discussion, and receive and provide peer feedback;
- Join the social programme, which allows you to get to know your international peers.
